

Resources for the Internet-Savvy Writer

World-Changing Websites

Free meetings for up to 10 people: www.meetingburner.com

Where the next generation goes for entertainment: www.youtube.com

Find 1/7 of the world's population: www.facebook.com

Connect instantly with peers in your industry: www.twitter.com (500 million & growing)

Where high school & college kids learn current events from each other: www.tumblr.com

Where college professors learn current events from each other: www.reddit.com

Where an indescribable demographic learns current events: www.stumbleupon.com

A social networking music-sharing site (BE the deejay): www.blip.fm

Where the textually-impaired share their preferences: www.pinterest.com

The richest assortment of content about everything: <http://www.google.com/blogsearch>

Publish an ebook for Kindle: <http://kdp.amazon.com>

Publish a Digital Magazine for the iStore (not .com, it's .co): www.magcasting.co

Publish a paper book on-demand for free: www.createspace.com

Where to Start

Create a Google+ profile: <http://plus.google.com>

Start on Twitter: www.twitter.com

Create a Facebook account: www.facebook.com

Make Twitter way easier to use (try the online version): www.tweetdeck.com

Connect with Peers

Get involved with #gardenchat. Information here: www.bggarden.com/gardenchat.html

A fine tool for monitoring #gardenchat: www.tweetchat.com

Daniel on Facebook (find me, friend me, message me and I'll get you connected):

<http://www.facebook.com/cityslipper>

Daniel on Twitter (follow me, tweet me, and I'll help you get comfortable):

<http://www.twitter.com/cityslipper>

Free Blogging Services

On Google's dime: www.blogspot.com

The leading blogging platform, simplified and hosted: www.wordpress.com

Occasional Updates and Rants

Daniel's poorly-maintained social marketing blog:

www.websocialmarketingstrategies.com